

Meet the WWE Superstars

The Superstars of WWE Friday Night Smackdown

Roman Reigns

The Bloodline

“The Head Of The Table”

SmackDown’s biggest star, Roman is an agile, imposing juggernaut that has been told his entire life that he cannot accomplish his goals. And since day one of his arrival in WWE, he has proven his naysayers wrong in the language of broken bodies and shattered Superstars who thought they had his number.

Whether it was finishing opposing teams off as the enforcer of The Shield or steadily grinding his way toward the WWE Championship as a solo competitor, Reigns has made a lasting impression on anyone who’s come into contact with him.

Jey Uso

The Bloodline

Despite tag team greatness with his twin brother, Jey Uso has reached his greatest notoriety in his association with his cousin Roman Reigns. Following a highly personal feud with The Big Dog, Jey was eventually subjected by the "Head of the Table."

Since then, Jey has become completely unhinged, delivering numerous attacks of Superstars at the behest of Reigns and becoming "main event" Jey Uso thanks to numerous main event showdowns on SmackDown.

Jimmy Uso

The Bloodline

Along with his twin brother Jey, Jimmy has caused nightmares for the WWE Tag Team division for years. Initially a hard-working team with under-the-radar buzz, The Usos eventually fulfilled their WWE Hall of Fame lineage by winning the WWE Tag Team Titles — and twice winning the Tag Team of the Year Slammy — soaring across the ring in tassels and war paint.

Solo Sikoa

The Bloodline

The Street Champion of the Island has arrived.

Solo Sikoa is the apple that fell far from the illustrious Anoa'i family tree. Given up on and abandoned, he survived by fighting on the streets since he was just 15 years old.

But Sikoa is done eating scraps, and now he's ready to take food off everyone else's table.

Rey Mysterio

He stands only 5-foot-6 and barely weighs 175 pounds, but a lack of size didn't stop the incomparable Rey Mysterio from achieving giant dreams like capturing the WWE Championship or outlasting 29 other Superstars to win the Royal Rumble as the No. 2 entrant.

Trained in the proud Mexican tradition of lucha libre before he was even old enough to drive, Rey Mysterio adopted his ring name in tribute to his uncle and hid his face under a mask as lucha custom dictates.

Kofi Kingston

The New Day

The New Day's Kofi Kingston is powered by positivity, and he's used it to catapult himself to new heights, including the WWE Championship.

Since bursting on the WWE scene in 2007, Kingston has established himself as one of WWE's premier high-flyers. That, paired with his upbeat attitude, made him a perennial favorite of the WWE Universe as he racked up Intercontinental, United States and Tag Team Championships. He has several signature moves that include double backhand chop, flying forearm smash, and somersault plancha.

Since 2014, Kingston and tag team partner Xavier Woods have had an unmistakably bold presence on WWE.

Xavier Woods

The New Day

A dynamic Superstar with plenty of brains--Woods is far more intelligent than his off-key trombone bleating may let on. He's damn good in the ring, too, snatching multiple WWE Tag Team Championships alongside his New Day crew.

The King of the Ring has also found the time to host his own YouTube gaming channel, UpUpDownDown, which has more than two million subscribers. No doubt, Woods and Kingston have seized their moment, and when Xavier Woods steps inside the ring, you can be sure that his opponents are about to be schooled.

Sami Zayn

“Master Strategist”

Zayn is known on SmackDown as the self-proclaimed "Master Strategist" after winning a number of matches utilizing methods such as trapping his opponents in the ring apron or making them chase him under the ring in order to secure a count-out victory. Moreover, he holds the strong belief that there is a WWE-wide conspiracy against him and professes that idea to anyone on the blue brand who will listen with a barrage of rants as he indiscriminately lashes out at the WWE Universe and the locker room alike.

Ashante Adonis

Hit Row

There's a fine line between arrogance and confidence, but Ashante Adonis has found it in relatively short order.

While Adonis' tendency for showboating has occasionally proved costly, some early lessons from The Brian Kendrick seem to have instilled a sense of urgency in the young competitor.

But that's not to say that Adonis has reinvented himself as the humblest Superstar, as he still sports a one-of-a-kind fashion style that he shows off whenever he saunters to the ring alongside his comrades Hit Row.

Top Dolla

Hit Row

Top Dolla is ready to change the game and bring Hit Row to the top with him.

From dropping bars to dropping opponents, Top Dolla always commands attention. The towering Superstar burst onto the scene and flexed his muscle as Hit Row's main enforcer. Top Dolla imposes his will during parking lot throwdowns and literally picking up and throwing opponents around the ring.

Ridge Holland

The Brawling Brutes

What do you do if you're deemed too dangerous and too reckless for the rough-and-tumble world of professional rugby? If you're Ridge Holland, you move from the pitch to the ring and start busting skulls there instead.

Built as strong as Sheffield steel and outfitted with hands the size of bowling balls, the barrel-chested Brit seems to apply much of what he learned on the rugby field to the ring. He delights in walloping foes with headbutts, cranium strikes so powerful they'd give the bombproof vault walls inside the Bank of England a run for their money. If that's not menacing enough, he carries a truncheon wherever he goes and is more than willing to use it.

Butch

The Brawling Brutes

While Butch began as a “full of hope” high-flyer, he transformed into a vengeful brawler who will accept nothing less than complete success.

With a penchant for inflicting pain — not to mention, a habit of attacking anybody who stands between him and whatever prize is in his crosshairs — Butch lives in such a perpetual state of intensity that people cross the street to avoid him. Across the ring, his opponents have no such option.

Sheamus

With a red-hot temper that matches his fiery head of hair, Sheamus never backs down from a fight and has never been in one he didn't think he could win. Hailing from Dublin, the ginger-headed juggernaut brings to the ring a ferocious offensive style that harkens to his noble and heroic Celtic ancestors. Whether by upbringing or by birthright, this modern-day Irish warrior was fated for combat.

Sheamus is always looking for a fight, and one swift Brogue Kick is all it takes to make him the victor.

Karrion Kross

The sight of Kross' physique — a hulking 6-foot-4, 265 pounds — and the unbridled intensity in his eyes is enough on its own to inspire fear in opponents. Consider also his unique combination of precision and abject ruthlessness, and it becomes clear that anyone stepping in the ring with Kross is in immediate danger.

A master of catch wrestling and sambo, Kross has done battle around the world. He boasts an array of devastating suplexes, including his dreaded Doomsday Saito, performed with reckless intent. And if that's not enough, he's more than happy to put opponents to sleep with the Kross Jacket.

Erik & Ivar

The Viking Raiders, Erik & Ivar, are bent on world domination.

Looking like warriors ready to plunder an unsuspecting village, Erik & Ivar possess an in-ring ferocity that matches their fearsome appearance. Erik boasts incredible power, the perfect complement to Ivar's surprising speed and agility. With years of experience teaming together, The Viking Raiders have also perfected their tag-team craft, resulting in one of WWE's most well-honed tandem arsenals.

When the raid is on, you have two choices: join it, or get out of the way.

Santos Escobar

Legado del Fantasma

The second-generation Superstar is a veteran of the Mexican wrestling scene. Hailing from Mexico City, he is the son of legendary luchador El Fantasma and nephew of the late Arkangel de la Muerte. Though he's beyond well-versed in the art of lucha libre, what sets Escobar apart from many is his unusual ability to blend highflying with more powerful maneuvers.

Highly acclaimed for his spectacular tope suicida that might be the industry's best, Escobar prefers to put foes away with a high-impact Phantom Driver.

Joaquin Wilde

Legado del Fantasma

Joaquin Wilde used to literally light up the room when he made his entrance, at least until he turned to the dark side and Legado del Fantasma.

With a mean streak and in-ring style that is completely his own, Wilde represents the future of sports-entertainment, and the future is bright.

Cruz del Toro

Legado del Fantasma

One of the world's fastest Superstars and most spectacular aerial artists, Cruz Del Toro keeps opponents on their toes by darting around the ring like a pinball bouncing off bumpers.

Capable of stealing the show on any given night, Del Toro remains among the brightest young prospects in all of WWE.

Female Superstars

Charlotte Flair

She may be the daughter of 16-time World Champion Ric Flair, but Charlotte Flair is carving out a path of greatness all her own. She is the current Smackdown Women's Champion.

All told, the “genetically superior athlete” has won more Women's Titles than any other Superstar in WWE history. She also became the first female Superstar in WWE history to main event in a singles match on Raw, SmackDown and a pay-per-view.

More challengers are bound to surface; they always do. Yet, come what may, Charlotte Flair will continue competing the only way she knows how ... with flair!

Sonya Deville

Put your hair up and square up because Sonya Deville is looking for a fight. With a background in MMA, Deville uses her knowledge of striking and submission holds to ground and pound her opposition into defeat.

After a one-year hiatus from WWE, Deville returned in 2021 and became the assistant to on-screen authority figure Adam Pearce on the SmackDown brand. But this hasn't kept her out of the ring.

Deville is good and she knows it. From her flawless footwork to her confident scowl, she is always one thunderous kick or punch away from a knockout.

Liv Morgan

Rocking a snapback, a pair of Jordans and a mischievous smile, Liv Morgan is as unique and authentic inside the ring as her gear might suggest.

A former competitive cheerleader, Liv boasts a combination of agility and creativity once the bell rings, but she's not afraid to scrap, either.

Now at the top of the mountain on SmackDown, all eyes are indeed on the plucky young Superstar.

Shayna Baszler

There are plenty of tough women in WWE, but only one of them used to fight in a cage for a living.

The Queen of Spades is one of the true pioneers of women's MMA. After vanquishing many a foe inside the octagon, The Submission Magician chose to apply her martial craft to the squared circle, and her skills translated quickly.

Simply put, stepping into the ring with Shayna means you have three choices: tap, snap or nap.

Scarlett

If looks could kill, Scarlett might as well be a walking lethal weapon. Unfortunately for anyone who might cross her, she is aligned with a man beyond capable of inflicting serious damage, Karrion Kross.

With signature moves like the atomic drop, dragon sleeper, and monkey flip, Scarlett will brutally attack anyone who gets in her way.

Lacey Evans

“The Lady of WWE” Lacey Evans mixes the glamour of a pin-up model with the discipline of a warrior.

Waging a constant battle against the so-called “Nasties” of the WWE Women’s division, Lacey is out to prove what it means to be a “Lady” on Monday nights.

B-Fab

Hit Row

Hit Row has its sights set on reshaping SmackDown, and B-Fab is proving to be the difference maker in the takeover.

B-Fab has showed a willingness to do whatever it takes to help Hit Row rise to the top. From title celebration cyphers to lead pipe attacks in the NXT parking lot, B-Fab has tipped the scales for Hit Row since her arrival.

Time will tell how far Hit Row will go on the blue brand, but there's no doubt B-Fab will be front and center of the rise.

Xia Li

As the first Chinese woman to ever compete in a WWE ring, Xia Li is no stranger to breaking down barriers. Recruited to the WWE Performance Center in January 2017, Li made her debut mere months later, competing in the inaugural Mae Young Classic tournament. Although she had precious little experience inside the ring at the time, Li didn't fold under the immense pressure.

If other kick-happy Superstars are said to have “educated feet,” then Xia Li's feet should be considered nothing less than Rhodes Scholars. And it's only a matter of time before the entire WWE Universe takes notice.

